Dear FTC,

I would like to add my name to the list of people who are in favor of the national "Do Not Call" registry. It would be wonderful to have one place to request that my name not be on the call lists. Thank you for taking the time to consider this proposal.

REFERENCE: COMMENTS AND REQUEST TO RESTRICT TELEMARKETERS

Dear Secretary:

I have never been one to take the time to complain about something that involves large groups since I feel strongly that freedom is our most sacred privilege. However, when something becomes a monstrous invasion of the privacy of every citizen, something should and must be done to bring the culprit back into the realm of basic social conduct and courtesy. This comment involves the numerous telephone calls I receive on a daily basis from TELEMARKETERS who have the audacity to ring my telephone as late as 8:30 p.m.! I do not and will not order anything via telephone or internet because of the many problems with security of personal data. Therefore, every single telemarketer call is an invasion of my right to privacy when in my own home, minding my own business.

I also find it particularly annoying for them to ring the telephone only three times -- thus guaranteeing that a message recorder does not kick on and therefore cost them for the call. Or, if they ring four times (am sure by accident) my personal message recorder is jammed with their UNIDENTIFIED calls with no messages left. These calls are additionally offensive when there is a member of the family who is ill. Every ring of the telephone becomes a gut wrenching dread that this might be the call bearing bad news -- and then IT TURNS OUT TO BE AN UNIDENTIFIED CALL FROM A TELEMARKETER!!

In summary: I firmly believe that telemarketing should be banned. And if that is not legal, then the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Telecommunications Commission must provide a means for the average citizen who is being harassed several times a day on a daily basis to obtain relief via a centralized ,national "DO Not Call" registry as described in the article "Consummate Consumer" by Don Oldenburg, published in the Washington Post on Wednesday January 30, 2002.

Sincerely,

Karen J. Faunce

Dear Mr. Secretary,

Please put a stop to these telemarketer calls. It is especially annoying that they get credit for a call if you just pick up the phone. So they program many calls. We go to the phone and often no one is there.

Thank you very much

Dear Sir,

Please add my name to the National telemarketing
do not call list.

I am 55 years old, unable to walk - the phlegm keeps trying to get up to answer it - get there & no one there. I am not interested in buying any thing as I have no use for anything as I have everything I need.

I thank you.

I support your proposal for a national
Do Not Call Registry.

I am a single parent working full time to provide full support to my family. I consider my time at home precious - time with my children, doing household chores, etc. We receive several telemarketer calls per day. They start at 8am and go as late as 10pm.

Several telemarketers call repeatedly and others leave long messages on our answering machine.

Please help all of us who want some peaceful time with our families and support the Do not Call Registry.
Thank you!

Grizzly Bear - This magnificent symbol of America's beloved wilderness heritage has been brought back from the brink of extinction with the help of the Endangered Species Act. Today, there are fewer than 1,000 grizzlies in the lower 48 states. Their future remains uncertain as extractive industries continue to destroy the wild places they depend on for survival. Help us protect grizzly habitat and that of other threatened or endangered species nationwide.

Dear Ms. Vera:

I understand the Feds are finally getting tough with telemarketers who continue to call after being told not to.

I wish to complain about the continued, and unwanted, telemarketing efforts of the Portland Press Herald.

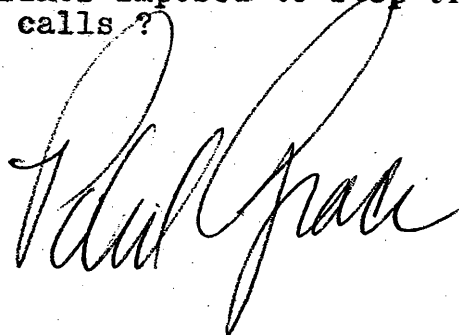

I was contacted by one of their telemarketers trying to get me to subscribe with the "free two weeks" offer. This was on Aug, 13 2001. I was called by Jason (no last name).

I told him I did not want the paper and wished to be put on their IN NOT CALL list. He assured me he would & a this and it would take 14 days to get me out of the system

Apparently I'm back in the system as I was called this morning by a woman trying to give me another two free weeks of the paper.

I would like to be left alone. Isn't it about time we had some hefty fines imposed to stop this continued and unwanted annoying calls?

Very truly,

PWG

Dear Sir/Madam:

I am writing to express my strong support for a national "Do Not Call" registry.

The current telemarketing regulations don't protect my privacy! A while back I kept a detailed log of all the telemarketing calls we received, by recording the date, time of day, the solicitation company and the caller's name. I told the caller to remove our name from their list, and if we get another call I would report them to the FTC. I can't tell you how many repeat calls we received from the same company. When I complained about getting repeat calls I got all kinds of answers, e.g. "you have to talk to my supervisor; it takes several weeks to get names on the don't call list; we are not the same company that called before" etc. etc.

I never reported any one to the FTC as I found your instructions to be cumbersome, and frankly, I didn't think much would be done about my complaints.

I am delighted with your new proposal! I believe the only way to combat the terrible telemarketing intrusion into our private lives is to place the burden on the telemarketer -- not on us victims.

With the refinement of technology the intrusion into our lives has increased. As a retired couple; we now get calls not just at dinner time, but during lunch when the telemarketing systems must know that most people our age are at home. I have also noticed an increase number of dead calls, that is, when we pick up and no one answers. I assume these calls are among blocks of random and automatically dialed numbers, for which only the first answered call is serviced. Meanwhile these annoying dead calls disturb our privacy.

As a final comment I encourage you to include requirements for controlling calls from charities and benevolent organizations. If such organizations outsource fund raising to telemarketing companies such companies should be held to the "Do Not Call" registry regulations. Even though the cause may be admirable, their telemarketing behavior is no better than that by the for-profit businesses. They intrude into our private lives in equal ways and must be controlled.

From the above you can gather that I am an enthusiastic supporter of your proposal for a "Do Not Call" registry. Please don't let the First Amendment arguments of special interest groups influence your sound judgment. The Constitution certainly guarantees the individual peace, privacy and happiness -- rights that your new regulations would restore.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "W. C. Graeb", with a long horizontal flourish extending to the right.

Gentleman;

Place me & my wife on the list for proposal against the annoyance of telemarketing.

I have two telephone numbers into our house. You can well imagine the problem we experience with these high school drop outs. You can't convince them after you have said no over and over again.

If national legislation is possible please place us on the list, we do not want to be bothered with their pushy mis.

Dear Mr. Secretary,

Re the Telemarketers "Do Not Call" plan.
Count me in as in favor of it. I am 84 years old, not well, and taking these calls is a chore. Got 5 calls yesterday! I don't mind calls from worthy humane causes, etc.

Hope you can fix this. Even the answering machine
